

Graduate Student Climate Adaptation and Mitigation Partners (GradCAMP): A Climate Equity and Justice Network

Seeking graduate (Masters/PhD) students studying climate adaptation or mitigation related to working lands and/or waters with relevance to the Northeast interested in incorporating climate equity and justice into their research.

This is a virtual two-semester program in which scholars will learn from climate professionals in the equity and justice fields and present their research to local or regional stakeholders. GradCAMP follows a monthly virtual meeting schedule with an in-person workshop in June 2025, during which scholars will co-create equity fact sheets on related topics as a team. Travel funding provided to 2025 Scholars for the workshop.

How to apply: Find the application and more information on the USDA Northeast Climate Hub website. Email completed application to GradCAMP Coordinator, Jorge Vera (jvera@wvstateu.edu) by January 20, 2025.

Photo by Jorge Vera

Scholar Benefits:

- Opportunity to discuss issues of climate equity and justice with other graduate students
- Expand your research by exploring the implications of climate equity and justice
- Network with climate professionals

APPLY NOW